vs.

JERRY LEE MORGAN,

Defendant.

The defendant in this case, Jerry Lee Morgan, is back before the court, again seeking to challenge his conviction, long after the time to do so has passed, and with an uncertified successive motion. His motion for relief is plainly barred, and it will be dismissed forthwith.

Morgan was convicted, following a jury trial, of kidnapping and carjacking. He was originally sentenced on October 20, 1999, to 328 months in prison for the kidnapping, and 300 months in prison for the carjacking, the two sentences to run concurrently (docket #66 and #69). Morgan appealed, and the Government cross-appealed (see docket #67 and #72). The court of appeals affirmed Morgan's convictions but, on the Government's cross-appeal, reversed and remanded for resentencing. United States v. Morgan, 238 F.3d 1180 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 534 U.S. 863 (2001) (That opinion includes a summary of the facts underlying the case, at pages 1183-85.). On remand, on September 12, 2001, Morgan was resentenced to 382 months in prison

1 for the kidnapping, and 300 months in prison for the carjacking, the two sentences to run
2 concurrently (docket #91, #92, #100). Morgan again appealed (docket #93), and the court of appeals 3 affirmed in an unpublished memorandum decision filed on April 29, 2002 (docket #102, #103). The 4 court of appeals issued its mandate on May 21, 2002 (docket #103, #104). The Supreme Court
5 denied certiorari on October 7, 2002. Morgan v. United States, 537 U.S. 921 (2002).

6 On October 15, 2003, Morgan initiated a section 2255 motion (docket #105). On 7 February 12, 2004, the court appointed counsel to represent Morgan, and granted counsel time to 8 amend the section 2255 motion (docket #120). On June 13, 2005, with the benefit of counsel, 9 Morgan filed a Second Amended Section 2255 Motion (docket #150). On July 14, 2005, the 10 Government responded (docket #156), arguing that most of Morgan's second amended motion was 11 barred by the statute of limitations, and that, at any rate, Morgan was not entitled to relief on the 12 merits of his claims. The parties then consented to disposition of this case by the Magistrate Judge 13 and the referral was made by the District Judge. See Order entered February 9, 2006 (docket #165).
14 In an order entered May 5, 2006 (docket #171), the court dismissed all but two of Morgan's claims, 15 as barred by the statute of limitations, and denied one of those two timely claims, leaving only one 16 claim remaining to be adjudicated. The court then granted Morgan leave to conduct investigation, 17 and to supplement his motion with respect to the remaining claim.

18 However, before the remaining claim could be resolved, at a hearing on June 5, 2007, 19 Morgan insisted that his counsel be discharged and his motion dismissed. See Minutes of 20 Proceedings dated June 5, 2007 (docket #209); Order entered June 5, 2007 (docket #210). The 21 section 2255 motion was, therefore, dismissed without prejudice on June 5, 2007, and judgment was 22 entered (docket #211).

23 More than a year later, on November 20, 2008, Morgan filed a pro se document entitled 24 "Writ of Error Audita Querela Title 28 U.S.C. § 1651" (docket #229). In that document, Morgan
25 again sought relief from his sentence, on grounds that it was imposed in violation of the Sixth 26 Amendment and the rule of United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005). In an order entered

1 January 21, 2009 (docket #230), this court treated that motion as a motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255,
2 and denied it. Judgment was entered accordingly (docket #231). This court denied Morgan a 3 certificate of appealability (docket #235). On March 5, 2010, the court of appeals likewise denied 4 Morgan a certificate of appealability, and Morgan's appeal was terminated (docket #238).

5 Now, eight years after his conviction became final, and after the dismissal of the appeal 6 regarding his last meritless section 2255 motion, Morgan has again initiated a challenge to his 7 conviction and sentence. This time, Morgan filed, in the Eastern District of California, what 8 purports to be a petition for a writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 (docket #240). The 9 United States District Court for the Eastern District of California transferred that petition to this 10 court, and it was filed in this action on December 13, 2010 (docket #239, #240, #241).

11 In his petition, Morgan states that he "was indicted for allegedly acting against sections
12 1201(a)(1) and 2119(2) of title 18 United States Code," and that "the [carjacking] automatically
13 triggered the kidnapping charge." Petition (docket #240), p. 3. Morgan "asserts that his rights to due 14 process have been violated where a merger problem exists." Id. Morgan requests that one of his 15 convictions be vacated. Id. at 4. Because Morgan asserts that his convictions are unconstitutional, 16 in violation of the due process clause of the United States Constitution, his challenge is plainly in the 17 nature of a motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, and it will be treated as such.

18 Morgan's motion, and the records in the case, conclusively show that Morgan is entitled to 19 no relief. This motion is plainly barred by the statute of limitations – no less than was his last 20 motion, which was initiated on November 20, 2008. See 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f). Moreover, this is a 21 successive motion under section 2255, and there is no indication that it has been certified by the 22 court of appeals as provided in 28 U.S.C. § 2244. See 28 U.S.C. § 2255(h). Therefore, Morgan's 23 new motion for relief from his conviction will be denied forthwith. See 28 U.S.C. § 2255(b).

24 Furthermore, the court will deny Morgan a certificate of appealability. The standard for 25 issuance of a certificate of appealability calls for a "substantial showing of the denial of a 26

1 constitutional right.” 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c). The Supreme Court has interpreted 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c) 2 as follows:

3 Where a district court has rejected the constitutional claims on the merits, the 4 showing required to satisfy § 2253(c) is straightforward: The petitioner must 5 demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court’s assessment of the 6 constitutional claims debatable or wrong. The issue becomes somewhat more 7 complicated where, as here, the district court dismisses the petition based on 8 procedural grounds. We hold as follows: When the district court denies a habeas petition on procedural grounds without reaching the prisoner’s underlying constitutional claim, a COA should issue when the prisoner shows, at least, that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right and that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling.

9 Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000); see also James v. Giles, 221 F.3d 1074, 1077-79
 10 (9th Cir.2000). The Supreme Court further illuminated the standard for issuance of a certificate of 11 appealability in Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322 (2003). The Court stated:

12 We do not require petitioner to prove, before the issuance of a COA, that some jurists 13 would grant the petition for habeas corpus. Indeed, a claim can be debatable even 14 though every jurist of reason might agree, after the COA has been granted and the 15 case has received full consideration, that petitioner will not prevail. As we stated in 16 Slack, “[w]here a district court has rejected the constitutional claims on the merits, the 17 showing required to satisfy § 2253(c) is straightforward: The petitioner must 18 demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court’s assessment of the 19 constitutional claims debatable or wrong.”

20 Miller-El, 537 U.S. at 338 (quoting Slack, 529 U.S. at 484). The requirements for a certificate of 21 appealability for a section 2255 appeal do not appear to differ from the requirements for a certificate
 22 of appealability for a section 2254 habeas petition related to a state conviction. See U.S. v. Asrar, 116
 23 F.3d 1268, 1270 (9th Cir. 1997). The court finds that Morgan does not meet the standard for 24 issuance of a certificate of appealability. Morgan’s current motion was plainly filed well beyond the 25 expiration of the applicable limitations period. And, furthermore, it is plainly a successive motion, not certified by the court of appeals. These ruling appear to be beyond any reasonable debate. The court will, therefore, deny Morgan a certificate of appealability. Morgan may seek a certificate of appealability from the court of appeals. See Fed.R.App.P. 22(b).

1 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that defendant's petition for a writ of habeas corpus under 2 28 U.S.C. § 2241 (docket #240) is treated as a motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, and is DENIED.

3 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk shall enter judgment accordingly.

4 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that defendant is denied a certificate of appealability.
